EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

According to Article 1 of the Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC), marriage of a child younger than 18 years old is considered as child/early marriage. In keeping with the Indian laws however, a girl below 18 and a male below 21 are considered minors and a marriage wherein either party are below this stipulated age is considered as child marriage. Such a marriage is not only considered a social evil, but is also illegal and therefore a punishable offence.

Child marriage is a human rights violation and also amounts to violation of the children's rights. It adversely affects the overall development of both the boy and girl, however the girl is the more affected as it often leads to early pregnancy and high maternal and infant mortality. Inter-generational malnutrition is also the fallout of child marriage. It is an obstruction to the wholesome growth and sound physical, emotional and psychological well-being of a child.

Though India had been witness to child marriages for centuries, it was in 1929 that it came to be recognized as a social and legal violation with the Child Marriage Restraint Act (CMRA) popularly known as the Sharda Act and it prohibited child marriages of girls below the age of 15 years and of boys below the age 18. This law was amended in 1978 and it rose the minimum age of marriage by three years i.e. from 15 to 18 years in case of girls and from 18 to 21 years in case of boys. The amended law came to be known as the Child Marriage Restraint Act.

Child marriages continued despite these laws being formulated and enforced. It was in 2006 that the shortcomings of this law were rectified by way of another amendment with more stringent punishments and fines. The law now called Prohibition of Child Marriage Act, 2006, (PCMA, 2006).

As part of the measures taken by the Andhra Pradesh State Govt. to enforce the PCMA, the Andhra Pradesh Prohibition of Child Marriages Rules came into being in 2012. According to the rules, the state appointed Child Marriages Prohibition Officers (CMPOs) who are vested with powers of a police officer to prevent child marriages in the State. It also designated a Nodal Officer for the purpose of implementation of the Act and the Rules. Additionally, it provided for constituting a committee called Village Child Marriage Prohibition and Monitoring Committee in every village to monitor and supervise the implementation of the Act and the Rules within that village.

With an aim to effectively implement the Act at various levels, the ACR (Alliance for Child Rights) suggested that policy changes be brought about. Hence, a research study to highlight the gaps in implementation of CMRA and the State rule was planned. Field visits were made and a certain number of Child Marriage Prohibition Officers (CMPOs and Revenue Divisional Officers) from 2 districts of Telangana were interviewed to understand the ground realities of implementation of the act and rule.

The recommendations that emerged out of the findings of the survey were as follows:

1. Drafting of a fresh State Rule and enforcement of the same for Telangana. Appointment of full-time CMPOs at the district level with both preventive and educative roles and responsibilities. Proper training of all CMPOs should be the part of the State rule.
2. State Plan of Action to prevent child marriage to be prepared and implemented, keeping in mind the gravity of the problem.
3. Promote linkage with ICPS service delivery structure and statutory bodies (for eg. CWC) to prevent child marriage and also to take care of rehabilitation part of the victims of child marriage.
4. Strict enforcement of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2006 to ensure rehabilitative measure for the victims of child marriage.
5. Enforcement of the existing laws such as Right to Education and Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961. Stringent enforcement of the Right to Education Act, 2009 to ensure all children have access to elementary education. Stringent enforcement of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 as amended in 1986 to ensure that the fear of economic burden and perception of girls as an economic liability does not drive families to perform child marriage.
6. Ensure registration of all marriages at the panchayat level.
7. Strengthen childrens' governance from the micro (village/community level) to the macro-level (state and national level) and ensure child participation at every level.
8. Sensitization and enhancement of the capacity of the enforcement personnel and field functionaries for effective implementation of the Prohibition of Child Marriage Act, 2006.

9. Aiding reach of the CHILDLINE network at the district level and the coverage of service to the remotest part of the districts through networking with local NGOs, Civil Society etc.
10. Linking the Village Level Child Marriage Prohibition and Monitoring Committee with Village level Child Protection Committee for identification of high risk families.
11. More engagement with police (especially SJPU under J.J. Act) and judiciary for more preventive and engagement role.
12. Accountability and social-audit mechanism to ensure greater investments in the girl children. Periodic review of the entitlements vis-à-vis accountability of the duty bearers is a mandatory requirement.
13. Area-specific plan for awareness generation to change the mindset and social norms.

This survey has two aspects in general. One is to figure out the level of awareness of the CMPOs on the Act and State rule. It also gives an estimate idea about the capacity building need for CMPOs. On the other hand the survey also focuses on the gravity and magnitude of the problem. Subsequently, it also highlights the number of child marriage cases (district-specific) and the reason for child marriage. As a whole, it gives a comprehensive picture of the status of implementation of the CMPA and the State rule by focusing on the field level reality. The data from various indicators vary from one district to another, thus showing that the nature of problem in the state is heterogeneous, although the respondent group for the study was homogeneous. It provides invaluable guidance to policy makers for effective formulation and enforcement of rules.

CHAPTER 1 INTRODUCTION

‘Premature pregnancy and motherhood are inevitable consequences of child marriage. Girls under 14 are five times more likely to die during pregnancy and childbirth than women in their twenties’. – State of the World’s Children, 2007, UNICEF

Child/early marriage refers to any marriage of a child younger than 18 years old, in accordance to Article 1 of the Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC). While child marriage affects both sexes, girls are disproportionately affected as they are the majority of the victims. Their overall development is compromised, leaving them socially isolated with little education, skills and opportunities for employment and self-realization. This leaves child brides more vulnerable to poverty, a consequence of child marriage as well as a cause. In India, it is a marriage to which either of the contracting party is a child. Child or minor under this law is defined as 18 years in the case of girls and 21 years in the case of boys (according to S2 (b) of The Prohibition of Child Marriage Act, 2006).

Child marriage is not only a human rights violation, but it also hinders the achievement of Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) and compromises the future of our children and our country. Child marriage is a major social concern and a violation of children’s rights – whether it happens to a girl or a boy as it denies basic rights to health, nutrition, education, freedom from violence, abuse and exploitation and also deprives the child from his/her childhood. Child marriage has adverse effects for the child bride and bridegroom and for the society as a whole. For both girls and boys, marriage has profound physical, intellectual, psychological and emotional impacts, cutting off educational opportunities and chances of personal growth. For society as a whole, child marriage reinforces the cycle of poverty and perpetrates gender discrimination, illiteracy, domestic violence, as well as high infant and maternal mortality rates, neonatal deaths, mal-nourished children etc. Child marriage is detrimental to the physical, moral and social upbringing of a child denying a child his/her basic right to survival, protection, participation and development.

Child marriage is a social sin in a civilized society. It is an obvious abuse of child rights as it hinders the child from developing into a fully empowered and a grown up individual. Child marriage is not only an evil practice but also harmful for the child. The obvious victim of this harmful practice is the child. The child falls into a vicious cycle of early marriage which leads to early pregnancy and finally to maternal and infant mortality. In fact one of the prime causes of high infant and maternal mortality in India is early marriage. Child marriage also leads to inter-generational cycle of malnutrition. Child marriage deny a child the basic right to good health, nutrition and education. Evidence shows that early marriage makes girls more vulnerable to violence, abuse and exploitation. For both girls and boys, marriage has a strong physical, intellectual, psychological and emotional impact, cutting off educational opportunities and chances of personal growth. While boys are affected by child marriage, this is an issue that impacts upon girls in far larger numbers and with high intensity¹.

In India child marriage is defined as the marriage of males below the age of 21 years, and females below 18 years (The Prohibition of Child Marriage Act, 2006). The practice of child marriage is an obstacle to nearly every developmental milestone: eradicating poverty and hunger (MDG 1); achieving universal primary education (MDG 2); promoting gender equality (MDG 3); protecting children's lives (MDG 4); and improving women's health (MDG 5, MDG6).

Child marriage in India has been practiced for centuries, with children married off before their physical and mental maturity. The problem of child marriage in India remains rooted in a complex matrix of religious traditions, social practices, economic factors and deeply rooted prejudices. Recognizing child marriage as a social evil, the Child Marriage Restraint Act (CMRA) 1929, popularly known as the Sharda Act, prohibited child marriages of girls below the age of 15 years and of boys below the age 18².

This law applied to all citizens of India (universal and secular law). In 1978, the law was amended to make it more effective and it rose the minimum age of marriage by three years i.e. from 15 to 18 years in case of girls and from 18 to 21 years in case of boys. The amended law came to be known as the Child Marriage Restraint Act, 1929. However, despite the law,

1.1 Incidences of Child Marriage (at national and state level)

Worldwide one of the key indicators to measure the incidence of child marriage is the percentage of currently married women in the age group 20–24 years who were married before the legal age of 18 years. As far as India is concerned, the data from three rounds of NFHS (Figure 1) portrays a declining trend, yet the rate of decline has been very slow, at less than one percentage points per year. As per the latest NFHS (2005–2006) data, the percentage of women getting married below 18 years continues to be very high. Overall, 47.4% or one in two women were child brides⁴.

In India, child marriage occurs when girls below 18 years of age or boys below 21 years of age are being married. Despite existing legislation since 1929, prohibiting child marriages, the practice is still rampant. The total child population in India is approximately 428 million. It is estimated that, 40 percent or 170 million children are vulnerable to or experiencing difficult circumstances. Nearly half (43%) of women aged between 20 to 24 years are married before the age of 18 years. Of these, 10 percent are married before the age of 14 years, and 34 percent are married between 14 to 17 years of age. Child marriage continues to exist because of a combination of structural elements (poverty, limited education and other livelihood options) and social norms around gender and marriage. The states with the highest incidence of child marriage in the country are Bihar, Rajasthan, Jharkhand, Uttar Pradesh, West Bengal, Madhya Pradesh, Andhra Pradesh and Karnataka. Child marriage is a common practice throughout the country but it affects girls in rural areas (48%) more than in urban regions (29%)⁵.

The latest round of DLHS (2007-2008) presents slightly different data, with the percentage of child brides being 42.9%. Over the last decade, the percentage of child brides in the age group of 20–24 years has decreased by a meagre 6.8 percentage points from 54.2% in 1992-1993 to 47.4% in 2005-2006. Given the trend over the last three rounds of NFHS, a linear projection of the percentage of child brides in 2011 would be 41.7%. In absolute numbers, out of the total number of women in the 20–24 year age group in India (Census 2011), more than 23 million continue to be child brides. With this figure, India contributes to 40% of the world’s child brides⁶.

There are more child marriages in rural areas than in urban areas. 52.5% of currently married women in the 20–24 year age group in rural areas and 28.2% in urban areas got married before 18 years of age. As per the latest DLHS (2007-2008) data, around 48% of currently married women in the 20–24 year age group got married before age 18 in rural areas compared to 29% in urban areas. Although the gap between urban and rural areas has almost halved from 30.2 percentage points in 1992-1993 (NFHS) to 18.6 percentage points in 2007-2008 (DLHS), currently married women in rural areas are twice more likely to be child brides than their urban counterparts.

1.2 State Profile of Telangana

The state of Telangana in many ways reflects the development crisis of the country at large. The agrarian distress and poor social indicators seemingly remain unaffected by the otherwise impressive growth vis-à-vis a growing IT industry and increasing private sector investments in power, road infrastructure and industry. Though Telangana has emerged as the IT hub in the country and all round development is visible, the state still lags behind more developed states in southern India in terms of development of children.

Evidence shows that child marriages result in perpetuating poverty. They tend to reinforce cycles of poverty, especially in rural areas. Child brides lack independent income options and yet are likely to have a larger number of children. Therefore they face severe financial insecurity. This is rather ironic since parents tend to marry off their girl children at an early age in the hope that it will bring security to the family. It also has a negative implication on other factors, these include deprivation from educational facility, lost opportunity for employment, poor reproductive health, high IMR and MMR and ultimately all these factors result into very low quality of life.

In 2012, UNICEF India conducted an analysis of secondary data and published a report on 'Child Marriage in India'. The report gives a situational analysis of child marriage in India and it also highlights state-specific situation along with the impact of child marriage on other child rights issues including child education, child health, child protection etc.

According to the report in United Andhra Pradesh, 54.8% (as per NFHS 3) of women aged between 20 and 24 years said that they were married before the legal age of marriage. The report had shown evidence of an increased level of school dropout rate after marriage. According to NFHS 3, during 2005-06 in United Andhra Pradesh, 18.1% of women aged between 16 and 19 years had begun to bear children and 89% of infant mortality rate is if children borne by mother's below 20 years of age.

CHAPTER 2 OBJECTIVES OF SURVEY

2.1 Background of the Study

The existing legal system in India with a special focus on State Rule on CMPA, 2006 in United Andhra Pradesh to prevent child marriage was the main background of the study.

2.1.1 Child Marriage Restraint Act, 1929 (CMRA)

The Child Marriage Restraint Act (CMRA) 1929, popularly known as the Sharda Act, prohibited child marriages of girls below the age of 15 years and of boys below the age 18. This law applied to all citizens of India. In 1978, the law was amended to make it more effective and it rose the minimum age of marriage by three years i.e. from 15 to 18 years in case of girls and from 18 to 21 years in case of boys. The amended law came to be known as the Child Marriage Restraint Act, 1929. The Act held performing, conducting or directing any child marriage as punishable. However, despite the law, child marriages continued to take place.

To overcome the shortcomings of the Child Marriage Restraint Act, the Government of India enacted the Prohibition of Child Marriages Act, 2006 (PCMA), which received the assent of the President of India on 10 January, 2007. The Act came into effect from 1 November, 2007⁷.

2.1.2 The Prohibition of Child Marriage Act, 2006

The Prohibition of Child Marriage Act, 2006 (PCMA, 2006) was notified on 10 January 2007 to overcome the constraints of the former legislations in effectively dealing with the problem of child marriages in India and to put in place a comprehensive mechanism. It came into force on 1 November 2007.

2.1.3 The Andhra Pradesh Prohibition of Child Marriages Rules, 2012

Five years after the Central Government Act was passed, the AP state government framed State Rules for the prohibition of child marriages in Andhra Pradesh (GO Ms.No.13) on 13.09.12 and as an effect of the GO, the 'Andhra Pradesh Prohibition of Child Marriages Rules, 2012' came into existence. According to the rules, the state will appoint Child Marriages Prohibition Officers (CMPOs) who are vested with powers of police officer to prevent child marriages in the State.

⁷ HAQ Centre for Child Rights, New Delhi. Handbook on Prohibition of Child Marriage Act, 2006, Ministry of Women and Child Development, GOI, INICEF

1. The District Collector of the concerned District is District CMPO.
2. Revenue Divisional Officer (RDO)/Sub-Collector at the divisional level.
3. The Child Development Project Officers (CDPOs) at the Project level covering 3-5 mandals which is under their jurisdiction.
4. The tehsildars at the mandal level for the villages which are under their jurisdiction.
5. The ICDS supervisors at the mandal level covering their respective villages under their jurisdiction.
6. The panchayat secretaries of the panchayat raj department and village administrative officers of revenue department at the village level.

The State Rule very clearly depicts the process for appointment of CMPOs, duties and powers of the CMPOs and disciplinary action against CMPOs. It also designated a Nodal Officer for the purpose of implementation of the Act and the Rules. One of the major components of the State Rule is⁹ Village Child Marriage Prohibition and Monitoring Committees.

A committee shall be constituted in every village to monitor and supervise the implementation of the Act and the Rules within that village. The Committee shall comprise of the following persons:

1. Gram Panchayat Sarpanch - Chairperson
2. The Panchayat Secretary - Member
3. Village Administrative Officers of Revenue Dept., - Member
4. Local School Teacher - Member
5. Members of self-help group/Gram Samakhya - Members
6. Elected Panchayat Women Members - Members
7. ANM - Member
8. NGO functioning in the area - Member
9. A member from Youth Organization, preferably a woman - Members

10. Village Officers - Members

11. ASHA - Member

12. Anganwadi Worker -Convener

In the above background for effective implementation of the Act at various levels, APACR (Andhra Pradesh Alliance for Child Rights) felt that there is an emerging need for policy change to strengthen better implementation of the act and rule across the state. Hence, they planned a research study to highlight the gaps in implementation of CMPA and the State rule. They conducted rounds of discussions with the policy makers of WD&CW Department at Hyderabad to realize the loopholes in the Rule, and they also conducted field visits and interviewed a certain number of Child Marriage Prohibition Officers (CDPOs and Revenue Divisional Officers) from four districts of Andhra Pradesh to understand the ground realities of implementation of the Act and Rule.

2.2 Objectives of the Survey

The objectives of the Research Study were as follows:

- To understand various bottle necks faced during implementation of the Act and incorporate stakeholder perspectives(service providers as well as the community),
- To impact conceptual clarity on the role of CMPOs in preventing early child marriages,
- To identify various gaps in the existing capacities of CMPOs and assess their training needs,
- To gain practical understanding regarding legal implications of booking the cases from the perspective of police personnel,
- To analyze the existing status of the Village Child Marriage Prohibition and Monitoring Committees,
- To give various recommendations to the concerned government body for effective implementation of the Act at the state level.

CHAPTER 3 SURVEY PLANNING & IMPLEMENTATION PLAN

Based on the magnitude of the problem at the State level, ACR realized that there was an emerging need for district-specific survey (high risk districts in terms of child marriage) to analyze the situation of child marriage with a special focus on implementation of State Rule. In the year 2013, ACR organized a regional consultation in Hyderabad (Telangana Region). They invited multiple levels of stakeholders including Commissioner, CDPOs, PDs, RJD and JD of WD&CW, RDOs, ICPS team, police, CWC members and NGOs to participate in those consultations. As an outcome of the discussion in the consecutive consultations, ACR developed a plan of action for the state to tackle the child marriage and the study on State Rule on CMPA with reference to GO Ms.No.13 was a part of the plan of action along with other activities such as awareness generation in campaign mode, sensitization of official on child marriage and promoting Village Level Child Marriage Prohibition Committees.

A list of high risk districts were also prepared in those consultations on the basis of the number of registered cases (as per information from DCRB) in the district and also firsthand information from CHILDLINE and other NGOs working on child marriage.

3.1 Developing the Sample Framework

In December, 2013 ACR started to plan the survey and in between, they also had a series of interactions with the Commissioner and Joint Director of WD & CW. ACR then decided to conduct the survey in 2 districts (as discussed in the consultation) in the State where the magnitude of the issue was very high.

The targeted districts from Telangana were Adilabad and Mahbubnagar. Meanwhile, ACR also entered into a joint collaboration with CESS as a technical agency to support them in the technical part (included finalisation of sample framework and data collection tool, guide the team to collect the data from field, data cleaning and data analysis and drafting the report) to conduct the survey.

Simple random sampling was selected as a sampling method for the survey in the two districts of Telangana depending on the availability of the survey subjects (CMPOs in district, mandal and village level).

3.2 Method for Data Collection

The interview method was selected as the data collection method for the survey and a list of indicators was decided on the survey subject. A draft questionnaire was developed by ACR. Then in a meeting, they shared the same questionnaire with CESS and WD & CW Dept. The questionnaire was finalised with feedback from the other partners and then it was translated into the local language (Telugu) and again into English for eliminating any error in translation. The survey manager from ACR crosschecked the questionnaire and thereafter finalised the Telugu version for collecting information from the field.

3.3 Training to Field Investigators

ACR decided to conduct the survey by its partner NGO representatives from the respective districts for collecting the data through interaction with CMPOs. A total number of __6__ field investigators were selected to conduct field-based interviews and a group of supervisors were part of the team for guiding and monitoring the investigators.

After translation of the questionnaire, an orientation programme was organised for the field investigators on the data collection tool in the month of March, 2014. The investigators were trained on each and every question in the questionnaire. They were also trained on the ethical aspect (do's and don'ts) for conducting this survey.

CHAPTER 4 ANALYSIS OF DATA - TS

The United Andhra Pradesh (AP) state government had framed rules for the prohibition of child marriages in AP (GO Ms.No.13), five years after the central Government Act was passed. According to the rules, the state will appoint Child Marriages Prohibition Officers (CMPOs) who are vested with powers of a police officer to prevent child marriages across the state. Village Child Marriage Prohibition and Monitoring Committees will also be constituted with panchayat sarpanchas the Chairman, an anganwadi worker as convener and 10 other members. However, it was found that there were many bottlenecks in the uniform implementation of the Act. A greater pressing need was felt for policy changes to ensure effective implementation of the Act across the state.

The present chapter endeavors to analyze data obtained from the two districts spanned across the state. The initial section gives an overview of the field area and details of respondents. This is followed by a detailed representation of data collected on various indicators used for the study in the state. A detailed analysis of data obtained on various reasons associated with child marriage has been presented with respective distribution of awareness of CMPA, 2006 among CMPOs in AP.

4.1 Overview of the Field Areas

The present study was devised across two districts of the newly created Telangana (TS) State, 11 mandals were covered from Adilabad district and 13 from Mahbubnagar district of TS.

4.2 Details of Respondents

Through this study, focus has been laid more on analysis of implementation of the Act at various levels. To achieve this purpose, CMPOs positioned in various mandals of the selected districts were interviewed with a structured interview schedule.

In TS, 31 CMPOs from Adilabad district and 27 from Mahbubnagar district were interviewed depending upon the availability of respondents.

4.3 Implementation of Child Marriage Act in TS: An Overview

This section presents data on the four major domains defined for data collection related with the study. CMPOs were interviewed to see the level of their awareness of CMP Act, 2006 and State Rules, information about implementation of government order number 13, child marriage cases in the districts, and other relevant information on child marriage. Within each of these domains, a set of subsidiary questions were also asked, data of which is presented below:.

4.3.1 Awareness About Child Marriage Act(CMPA), 2006

Awareness of CMPOs about CMPA was checked in terms of availability of data on child marriages, awareness about the Act, awareness about duties covered under the purview of the Act, training imparted and awareness level of gram panchayats about the CMP Act.

All 58 CMPOs across two districts were asked about the availability of relevant data on child marriages. The response rate was highly varied with 12.5% CMPOs stationed at Adilabad district responding affirmatively whereas 51.61% of them possessing data in Mahbubnagar district.

It was quite interesting to note the relationship which emerged between the percentage of CMPOs aware of CMP Act and the percentage of them who aware of their duties. In Adilabad district, although 100% of CMPOs were aware of CMP Act and their duties stated under the same. This data is quite startling. In Mahbubnagar district, although 93.55% of CMPOs were aware of their duties but only 58.06% of them who were aware of the CMP Act, 2006.

As shared by CMPOs across all mandals in two study districts, data available on training component was at two extremes. In Adilabad, 96.88% of them reported to have been trained while in Mahbubnagar district none of them made a mention about being trained. 93.75% of CMPOs from Adilabad reported to have increased awareness on CMP Act while in Mahbubnagar 58.06% of them mentioned being trained.

Interestingly, in both the districts, panchayats were found to be highly aware about the CMP Act 2006. 93.75% of gram panchayat's in Adilabad and 87.1% in Mahbubnagar district were found to be aware of the Act.

4.3.2 Information about the Implementation of GO No. 13 in TS

CMPOs were interviewed about the information available in relation to GO Order No. 13 (CMPA). Various aspects were covered under the same such as knowledge of GO No 13, knowledge about powers of the CMPO prescribed in the GO, confidence in exercising powers prescribed in GO, difficulties faced in performing powers as prescribed in GO, CMPOs getting support from anyone in preventing child marriages, awareness among CMPOs about the Village Child Marriage Prohibition Committee, and work areas of CMPOs wherein committees were constituted.

In Adilabad district, a high percentage of CMPOs with knowledge of GO 13 and percentage of CMPOs with knowledge of powers of CMPO as prescribed in GO 13 were found (100%). Whereas in the case of Mahbubnagar, this percentage dipped down to a low. 22.58% of CMPOs reported to have knowledge of GO 13 while 38.71% of them reported to have knowledge of powers of CMPO prescribed in GO 13.

In terms of CMPOs being able to exercise their powers confidently, as described in GO 13, there was again a varied response. There was a 100% response rate in Adilabad in contrast with 45.16% response rate from CMPOs in Mahbubnagar district.

In both the districts, CMPOs reported about facing difficulties in performing powers as prescribed in GO 13 for various reasons. Adilabad accounted for 31.25% and Mahbubnagar district accounted for 35.48%.

CMPOs were also interviewed in relation to the availability of any support from anyone in order to prevent child marriages in their respective districts. CMPOs from Adilabad district reported to have received 100% support where as CMPOs stationed at Mahbubnagar shared that they received 70.97% support.

Another aspect which was looked into through the survey was the percentage of CMPOs with awareness about Village Child Marriage Prohibition Committee and the percentage of them who have constituted committees in their respective areas. Awareness about something necessarily does not lead to acting upon the same. Data for the above two sub-domains is illustrated through Figure 4. It can be clearly seen that in Adilabad although 96.88% of CMPOs affirmed to be aware of Child Marriage Prohibition Committee, but yet only 3.13% of them constituted the same in their work areas. In Mahbubnagar district, 77.42% of CMPOs affirmed to awareness about the committees while only 35.48% of them constituted the same in their work areas.

4.3.3 Child Marriage Cases in TS

In order to assess the status of present child marriage cases, CMPOs were asked about the total number of child marriages cases stopped April 2014 onwards in their respective districts. CMPOs from Adilabad reported to have stopped 59 cases of child marriage followed by only ten cases in Mahbubnagar district. CMPOs from Adilabad and Mahbubnagar also shared about cases wherein child marriages did happen in spite of efforts to stop the same. This was recorded as 1 and 2 respectively for both the districts.

4.3.5 Information on Child Marriages in TS

CMPOs were inquired about a lot of concerns which are in general associated with child marriages in the state. Sub-domains such as complaints made against child marriages in the police station by CMPOs, support received from police, maintenance of registers, conducting of meetings with government department or committees, support available from NGOs, need for training about issues and legislation and awareness about compulsory registration of marriages (2012).

CMPOs across the district did report to have made police complaints made against child marriages but the percentages were very less. CMPOs from Adilabad reported to have 6.25% complaints in police stations while in Mahbubnagar it was 9.67%. A high number of them reported to have received support from police while making complaints. CMPOs in Adilabad received 100% support from police while in Mahbubnagar this accounted to 54.84%.

Data record registers maintenance fared quite poorly in both the districts. While in Mahbubnagar this figure was 35.48%, in Adilabad it dipped down to zero.

CMPOs were also enquired about conducting meeting with government department or committees. Mahbubnagar accounted for 54.84% while in Adilabad none of the CMPOs reported to have conducted such meetings at any point in time since April 2014.

It is also important to have NGO support if an endeavour is made towards stopping child marriages in the state. CMPOs across all four districts reported to have received varying degrees of support from NGOs. For CMPOs in Adilabad this support received accounted to 100% while in Mahbubnagar it was 45.16% only.

An exorbitantly high percentage of CMPOs in both the districts expressed the need for training on issues and legislations related to child marriage. All 100% of CMPOs in Adilabad and Mahbubnagar expressed need for the same.

In terms of awareness among CMPOs in relation with compulsory registration of marriages (2012) some variation was seen in both the districts. While in Adilabad, 100% CMPOs shared about having awareness in relation with act, in Mahbubnagar this percentage dipped down to 87.1%.

4.4 Reasons for Child Marriage in the Districts of TS

As revealed through the interviews conducted with CMPOs in April 2014, across the two districts of Telangana, it clearly emerged that there was a mix of responses in relation with different reasons being quoted. Various reasons were attributed and prioritized differently for early child marriages across the districts.

There was a mix of factors spanning across socio-cultural and economic domains which gave impetus to a high number of child marriages in the districts. Socio-cultural factors comprised of concern for social prestige, tradition and customs, nature of marriage alliance vis-a-vis maternal relatives, high dowry demands for grown up girls etc. Financial situation was a constraint for many of the parents in getting their grown up girls married off to a suitable match. There were also notions pertaining to gender such as discrimination, disrespect towards them which led to fuelling up of child marriages. Notions around sexuality of young grown up girls were also responsible in marrying off young girls before attaining maturity. Violence against young girls and the resultant insecurity which was created, also led to the notion of child marriage so that she is 'protected in the house and saved from atrocities'. There is also widespread illiteracy among parents which leads to inability to understand the advantages of marrying girls at a later stage. Lack of awareness is another major constraint which emanates out of low levels of literacy in the districts. Interestingly, it was also articulated that, it is better to marry of children at an early marriage since delaying will lead to them falling in love with a person who may not be the right match.

It is quite revealing to look at data obtained from the districts and priorities given to various reasons mentioned above by CMPOs. Table 2 given below respectively encapsulates the data across two districts of Telangana.

Table 2: Number of CMPOs Attributing Reasons for Child Marriage in the Districts of Telangana (with % in brackets)

Here, it is also important to look at distribution of awareness of CMPA among CMPO across different mandals of the districts. In each of the district, a total of 30 CMPOs were interviewed. Table 3 depicts the same across the states of TS. Figures given below represent number of CMPOs interviewed with respective distribution of knowledge about CMPA 2006 across different mandals. One must keep in consideration that these findings cannot be generalized at the universal level and represent respective situations of different mandals across the districts.

As evident from Table 4, a mix of pattern emerges out. In Adilabad district, 11 mandals were sampled in for the study wherein one CMPO per mandal was interviewed as per availability. All 11 CMPOs across all the mandals were found to be aware of CMP Act giving absolute 100% result. In contrast, mandals across Mahbubnagar district presented a varying pattern. Out of 14 sampled mandals, CMPOs from three mandals had not much idea or information about CMPA act. In Pebber, Athamakur, Peddakothapally, Telkapally, mandals one CMPO each was interviewed yielding absolute awareness as result. Among rest of the mandals, Gopalpeta had highest percentage (75%) and Mahbubnagar with lowest percentage (25%) of CMPOs aware of CMPA act. Figure 10 given below graphically captures above mentioned results across all the districts sampled for the study.

RECOMMENDATIONS AND CONCLUSIONS:

Recommendations

1. Draft a fresh State Rule and enforce the same for Telangana. Appointment of full-time CMPOs at the district level with a clear set of roles (both preventive and educative) and responsibilities and to ensure proper training of all CMPOs should be the part of the State rule.
2. State Plan of Action to Prevent Child Marriage can be prepared and implemented, keeping in mind the gravity of the problem.
3. Promote linkage with ICPS service delivery structure and statutory bodies (for e.g. CWC) to prevent child marriage and also to take care of rehabilitation part (focus on the alternative care mechanism of ICPS foster care and sponsorship) of the victims of child marriage.
4. Strict enforcement of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2006 to ensure rehabilitative measure for the victims of child marriage.
5. Enforcement of the existing laws such as Right to Education and Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 will help to abolish child marriage. Stringent enforcement of the Right to Education Act, 2009 to ensure all children have access to elementary education, whereby teachers, SDMC and panchayat members actively monitor access of children to schooling and prevent dropouts. Special attention should be given on priority basis to children who are vulnerable to drop out, such as girls, migrant families, nomadic communities etc. Stringent enforcement of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 as amended in 1986 to ensure that the fear of economic burden and perception of girls as an economic liability do not drive families to perform child marriage.
6. Ensure registration of all marriages at the panchayat level.
7. Strengthen children's governance from the micro (village/community level) to the macro-level (state and national level) and representation of children's voices at the national level for prevention of child marriages through ensuring child participation at every level.
8. Sensitization and enhancing the capacity of the enforcement personnel and field functionaries therefore are prerequisites for effective implementation of the Prohibition of Child Marriage Act, 2006.
9. Strengthen the CHILDLINE network at the district level and the coverage of service must be reached to the remotest part of the districts through networking with local NGOs, Civil Society etc.
10. Link the Village Level Child Marriage Prohibition and Monitoring Committee with Village Level Child Protection Committee for identification of high risk families as well as recommendation of counseling and preventive sponsorship (if required) for these families.
11. More engagement with police (especially SJPU under J.J. Act) and judiciary for more preventive and engagement role.
12. Accountability and social-audit mechanism to ensure greater investments in the girl children. Periodic review of the entitlements vis-à-vis accountability of the duty bearers is a mandatory requirement.

13. Area-specific plan for awareness generation to change the mindset and social norms

Conclusion:

Child marriage is a major social concern and a violation of children's rights – whether it happens to a girl or a boy –as it denies the basic rights to health, nutrition, education, freedom from violence, abuse and exploitation and deprives the child of his/her childhood. Child marriage in India has been practiced for centuries, with children married off before their physical and mental maturity. The problem of child marriage in India remains rooted in a complex matrix of religious traditions, social practices, economic factors and deeply rooted prejudices. Child marriage is a big hindrance in ensuring child protection for all children. CMPO s under CMPA and State Rule are the main instruments that can help the state to tackle this serious concern.

This survey is having two aspects in general. One of the findings of the study is the level of awareness of the CMPOs on the Act and State rule. It also gives an estimate idea about the capacity building need for CMPOs. On the other hand the survey also focuses on the gravity and magnitude of the problem. Subsequently it also highlights the number of child marriage cases (district-specific) and the reason for child marriage. As a whole, it gives an understanding on the status of implementation of the CMPA and the State rule by focusing on the field level reality. The data from various indicators vary from one district to another, thus showing that the nature of problem in the state is heterogeneous, although the respondent group for the study was homogeneous. The policy makers must give greater level of attention to address the heterogeneity of the problem and since the issue of child marriage is strongly rooted in the socio-cultural aspects of the society, so it should be the responsibility of every citizen to raise their voice and ensure that the necessary action is taken against the problem.

ii) GLOSSARY

Child Marriage Prohibition Officer: Child Marriage Prohibition Officers (CMPOs) are to be appointed in every state to prevent child marriages, ensure protection of the victims as well as prosecution of the offenders (Section 16, PCMA 2006). The Child Marriage Prohibition Officers are responsible for reporting and preventing child marriages.

Child Protection: Child Protection is about protecting children from or against any perceived or real danger or risk to their life, their personhood and childhood. It is about reducing their vulnerability to any kind of harm and protecting them in harmful situations.

Alliance for Child Rights: ACR is a network of child rights organization in Andhra Pradesh and Telangana.

Child Welfare Committee: The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act 2000 and Amendment Act 2006 make it mandatory to establish one Child Welfare Committee in each district as the final authority to dispose of cases for care, protection, treatment, development and rehabilitation of children in need of care and protection.

District Child Protection Society: ICPS envisages setting up a District Child Protection Society in each district as a fundamental unit for the implementation of the scheme.

Integrated Child Protection Scheme: The

Integrated Child Protection Scheme (ICPS) is a centrally sponsored scheme aimed at building a protective environment for children in difficult circumstances, as well as other vulnerable children, through Government-Civil Society Partnership. In 2009, the central government imparts approval to the scheme and has begun the extensive task of providing children with a protected and safe environment to develop and flourish. The purpose of the scheme is to provide for children in difficult circumstances, as well as to reduce the risks and vulnerabilities children have in various situations and actions that lead to abuse, neglect, exploitation, abandonment and separation of children.

Millennium Development Goals: The United Nations Millennium Development Goals are eight goals that all 191 UN Member States have agreed to try to achieve by the year 2015. The United Nations Millennium Declaration, signed in September 2000 commits world leaders to combat poverty, hunger, disease, illiteracy, environmental degradation, and discrimination against women. The MDGs are derived from this Declaration, and all have specific targets and indicators.

Special Juvenile Police Unit: As per the provisions

(Section 63) of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 and Amendment Act, 2006, one Special Juvenile Police Unit will be established in a district or city to co-ordinate and upgrade the police treatment of juveniles and the children. All the police officers, designated as CWO in the district or city, are members of the SJPU.

Centre for Economic and Social Studies: Centre for Economic and Social Studies (CESS) has made a significant contribution to social and economic research on different issues including poverty and women & child development since its establishment in 1980. The research outcomes of CESS are advocated with the government departments, civil society and national and international donor organizations for better policy initiatives. CESS has made a significant contribution to the policy with evidence- research and is strongly positioned in State and Central Government.
